

THE EVENING STAR,
With Sunday Morning Edition.WASHINGTON.
SATURDAY, August 1, 1914

THEODORE W. NOYES, Editor

The Evening Star Newspaper Company.

Business Office, 11th St. and Pennsylvania Avenue, New York Office, Tribune Building, Chicago Office, First National Bank Building, European Office, 8 Regent St., London, England.The Evening Star, with the Sunday morning edition, is delivered by carriers within the city for 40 cents per month, 20 cents per week.
Sundays only, 20 cents per month. Orders sent by mail, or telephone, $2.00.
Collection is made by carrier at the end of each month.Payable in advance by mail, postage prepaid: Daily, Sunday excepted, one month, 40 cents.
Daily, Sunday excepted, one month, 40 cents.
Saturday Star, $1 year; Sunday Star, $2.40 year.Entered as second-class mail matter at the post office at Washington, D. C.In order to avoid delay on account of personal absence letters to THE STAR should be addressed to any individual, or to the editor, or to the office, or to the publisher, with the Editor or Business Department, according to the purpose.

Adjournment.

Mr. Underwood's suggestion that the question of the adjournment of Congress in Europe is very important.If it comes, war on the scale threatened will shake the world. The like of it is not recorded. The length of it cannot be forecast. The effects of it will be beyond calculation.In a way, the United States is on the outside. But in another way it is on the inside. We are a world power, and have large business connections with Europe. Great smash there will cause at least great trembling here.We should keep ourselves prepared as well as possible for all emergencies.
With only the domestic situation in hand, it has been the opinion of many that the country might benefit by a cessation of the activities of Congress until winter.But, upon the instant, a new situation confronts us, and Congress is a most important factor in the equation. In circumstances legislation when necessary is very necessary, and with Congress in session the country will feel a greater security.Early adjournment has been urged not alone upon business grounds but upon political grounds. Senators and representatives standing for re-election have been anxious about their campaigns, and eager to go home and take charge in person.But in the new circumstances the higher duty may be here. And such being the case, we expect men of both parties to rise to it.How much this year's campaigns may be affected by the sudden change in matters is a question. Election day cannot be postponed. Even if the whole of Europe is rocking with armed conflict, voters in this country will go to the polls in November and choose a new House and a third of the Senate.Today the issue between the two parties is the record of the administration. The republicans challenge the new tariff law, some features of the new currency law, the forcing of trust legislation at this time, and the President's course toward Mexico, Colombia and Nicaragua. And that challenge will stand regardless of what may occur between now and November.But the vigor of the campaign, the efforts of the managers of both parties to stir the electorate under the new conditions as they would have had little trouble in doing under the old, will depend. We are approaching a situation that puzzles as well by its novelty as by its magnitude.

Property Owners and Street Paving.

Decision having been rendered by the corporation counsel that the so-called Borah amendment to the District appropriation bill, putting part of the cost of street paving upon the owners of abutting property, applies to work undertaken this year, the Commissioners are to proceed under the basis of the improvement of the streets by original paving and resurfacing. The question arises whether the owners of the property abutting the streets chosen for paving or repairs are to have any determining voice in the matter. It would seem only just to give them the chance to vote any proposition for the expenditure of money which must come in large part from their pockets. In many cases the assessment of paving costs upon the owners of property will prove an unbearable burden upon them. It is conceivable that some owners of property may be overwhelmed by these costs, if put upon them without their consent.
Of course the improvement of a street cannot be left to the individual wishes of the owners of property adjacent altogether—that is to say, a street cannot be paved piecemeal, left unpaved according as A, B, or C, may elect. But if a majority of the owners along a certain stretch of street scheduled for repair or for original paving protest against the work, their unwillingness to stand the cost, which the new system would impose upon them should operate as a deterrent, in all equity.If high prices are due, as some economists have declared, to the fact that gold has become abundant, and therefore less in value as an exchange for products, a scarcity of gold ought to create an immediate decline in the cost of food materials.Europe has no idea of using the mediation talent this hemisphere has developed in connection with the present crisis.The employment of lead to settle a political crisis requires an enormous amount of gold.

Chairman McCombs.

When Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee declined the French mission gossip carried two explanations: One was that he was "united," and would have nothing to do with the administration. The other was that his success in politics had given him a strong liking for the game, and that he preferred active political life at home to the leisure of a diplomatic post abroad, even in so attractive a city as Paris. The latter explanation seems to fit the case.Mr. McCombs must be fond of politics.
He keeps his hold on the national committee, and is in touch with what is going on in political circles.Just now he is busy trying to bring order out of chaos in New York. He wants a democratic governor, a democratic United States senator and as many democratic representatives as possible, elected in November. His choice for governor is thought to be Gov. Glynn, and his own name has been connected with the race for senator.Copying the republicans, the democrats are preparing a platform in advance of their state convention, and Mr.
McCombs is the chairman of the com-mittee which has the business in hand.
Those who will assist him are William Church, George B. Blount, George
Burd, William Temple Emmet, D. Cady
Herrick, Martin W. Littleton and Fay C.
Parsons. Besides, all other democratic leaders in the state are invited to make suggestions as to what the platform should contain.But Mr. McCombs is not confining his attention to New York. His official eye is glancing from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and back again. He is getting a line on the situation throughout the country respecting the next House, with a view, of course, of assisting democratic candidates in their campaigns.If there was at one time a coolness between Chairman McCombs and the President it has disappeared. They meet for conference at the White House apparently on the best of terms; the choice which testifies to the stronger there for the fact that his name has not been associated at any time with controversies growing out of patronage. There has been no "McCombs slate" mentioned in any quarter when the hunt for office has been on.Paris is bright and gay, and the life of an ambassador there is full of movement and pleasure. But in deciding to remain at home and bear a hand in the rough-and-tumble of our political activities, Mr. McCombs made the choice which testifies to the American spirit of wanting to be near when big things are stirring and to help to give them shape and consequence. The President is fortunate in the friendship and assistance of so capable a man, whose position gives weight to his words and deeds.

The Closed Exchanges.

The closing of the stock exchanges yesterday came as a total surprise, although when it occurred the reasonableness of the action was apparent. Undoubtedly this procedure saved many persons from loss. Great smash there will cause
at least great trembling here.We should keep ourselves prepared
as well as possible for all emergencies.
With only the domestic situation in
hand, it has been the opinion of many
that the country might benefit by a
cessation of the activities of Congress
until winter.But, upon the instant, a new situation
confronts us, and Congress is a most
important factor in the equation. In
circumstances legislation when
necessary is very necessary, and with
Congress in session the country will
feel a greater security.Early adjournment has been urged
not alone upon business grounds but
upon political grounds. Senators and
representatives standing for re-election
have been anxious about their campaigns, and eager to go home and take
charge in person.But in the new circumstances the
higher duty may be here. And such
being the case, we expect men
of both parties to rise to it.How much this year's campaigns may
be affected by the sudden change in
matters is a question. Election day
cannot be postponed. Even if the
whole of Europe is rocking with
armed conflict, voters in this coun-
try will go to the polls in November
and choose a new House and a third
of the Senate.Today the issue between the two
parties is the record of the administration. The republicans challenge the
new tariff law, some features of the
new currency law, the forcing of trust
legislation at this time, and the President's course toward Mexico, Colombia and Nicaragua. And that challenge will stand regardless of what
may occur between now and November.But the vigor of the campaign, the
efforts of the managers of both parties
to stir the electorate under the new
conditions as they would have had
little trouble in doing under the old,
will depend. We are approaching a
situation that puzzles as well by its
novelty as by its magnitude.

Property Owners and Street Paving.

Decision having been rendered by the
corporation counsel that the so-called
Borah amendment to the District ap-
propriation bill, putting part of the cost
of street paving upon the owners of
abutting property, applies to work undertaken this year, the Commissioners
are to proceed under the basis of the
improvement of the streets by original paving and resurfacing. The question
arises whether the owners of the property abutting the streets chosen for
paving or repairs are to have any de-
termining voice in the matter. It would seem only just to give them the chance
to vote any proposition for the expenditure of money which must come in large
part from their pockets. In many cases
the assessment of paving costs upon the
owners of property will prove an un-
bearable burden upon them. It is con-
ceivable that some owners of property
may be overwhelmed by these costs, if
put upon them without their consent.
Of course the improvement of a street
cannot be left to the individual wishes
of the owners of property adjacent al-
together—that is to say, a street cannot be
paved piecemeal, left unpaved according as A, B, or C, may elect. But if
a majority of the owners along a certain stretch of street scheduled for re-
pair or for original paving protest
against the work, their unwillingness to
stand the cost, which the new system
would impose upon them should operate
as a deterrent, in all equity.If high prices are due, as some
economists have declared, to the fact
that gold has become abundant, and
therefore less in value as an exchange
for products, a scarcity of gold ought
to create an immediate decline in the
cost of food materials.Europe has no idea of using the mediation talent this hemisphere has developed in connection with the present
crisis.The employment of lead to settle a
political crisis requires an enormous
amount of gold.

Chairman McCombs.

When Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee declined the French mission gossip carried two explanations: One was that he was
"united," and would have nothing to do
with the administration. The other was
that his success in politics had given him
a strong liking for the game, and that
he preferred active political life at home
to the leisure of a diplomatic post
abroad, even in so attractive a city as Paris. The latter explanation seems to
fit the case.Mr. McCombs must be fond of politics.
He keeps his hold on the national committee, and is in touch with what is going on in political circles.Just now he is busy trying to bring
order out of chaos in New York. He
wants a democratic governor, a democratic United States senator and as many
democratic representatives as possible,
elected in November. His choice for governor is thought to be Gov. Glynn, and
his own name has been connected with
the race for senator.Copying the republicans, the democrats are preparing a platform in advance of their state convention, and Mr.
McCombs is the chairman of the com-mitted which has the business in hand.
Those who will assist him are William
Church, George B. Blount, George
Burd, William Temple Emmet, D. Cady
Herrick, Martin W. Littleton and Fay C.
Parsons. Besides, all other democratic
leaders in the state are invited to make
suggestions as to what the platform
should contain.But Mr. McCombs is not confining his attention to New York. His official eye
is glancing from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and back again. He is getting a
line on the situation throughout the
country respecting the next House, with
a view, of course, of assisting democratic
candidates in their campaigns.If there was at one time a coolness between Chairman McCombs and the President it has disappeared. They meet for
conference at the White House apparently on the best of terms; the choice
which testifies to the stronger there for the fact that his name has not been associated at any time with controversies
growing out of patronage. There has been no "McCombs slate" mentioned in
any quarter when the hunt for office has been on.Paris is bright and gay, and the life
of an ambassador there is full of movement and pleasure. But in deciding to
remain at home and bear a hand in the
rough-and-tumble of our political activities, Mr. McCombs made the choice
which testifies to the American spirit of
wanting to be near when big things are
stirring and to help to give them shape
and consequence. The President is fortunate in the friendship and assistance of
so capable a man, whose position gives
weight to his words and deeds.

The Closed Exchanges.

The closing of the stock exchanges yesterday came as a total surprise, although
when it occurred the reasonableness of
the action was apparent. Undoubtedly
this procedure saved many persons from
loss. Great smash there will cause
at least great trembling here.We should keep ourselves prepared
as well as possible for all emergencies.
With only the domestic situation in
hand, it has been the opinion of many
that the country might benefit by a
cessation of the activities of Congress
until winter.But, upon the instant, a new situation
confronts us, and Congress is a most
important factor in the equation. In
circumstances legislation when
necessary is very necessary, and with
Congress in session the country will
feel a greater security.Early adjournment has been urged
not alone upon business grounds but
upon political grounds. Senators and
representatives standing for re-election
have been anxious about their campaigns, and eager to go home and take
charge in person.But in the new circumstances the
higher duty may be here. And such
being the case, we expect men
of both parties to rise to it.How much this year's campaigns may
be affected by the sudden change in
matters is a question. Election day
cannot be postponed. Even if the
whole of Europe is rocking with
armed conflict, voters in this coun-
try will go to the polls in November
and choose a new House and a third
of the Senate.Today the issue between the two
parties is the record of the administration. The republicans challenge the
new tariff law, some features of the
new currency law, the forcing of trust
legislation at this time, and the President's course toward Mexico, Colombia and Nicaragua. And that challenge will stand regardless of what
may occur between now and November.But the vigor of the campaign, the
efforts of the managers of both parties
to stir the electorate under the new
conditions as they would have had
little trouble in doing under the old,
will depend. We are approaching a
situation that puzzles as well by its
novelty as by its magnitude.

Property Owners and Street Paving.

Decision having been rendered by the
corporation counsel that the so-called
Borah amendment to the District ap-
propriation bill, putting part of the cost
of street paving upon the owners of
abutting property, applies to work undertaken this year, the Commissioners
are to proceed under the basis of the
improvement of the streets by original paving and resurfacing. The question
arises whether the owners of the property abutting the streets chosen for
paving or repairs are to have any de-
termining voice in the matter. It would seem only just to give them the chance
to vote any proposition for the expenditure of money which must come in large
part from their pockets. In many cases
the assessment of paving costs upon the
owners of property will prove an un-
bearable burden upon them. It is con-
ceivable that some owners of property
may be overwhelmed by these costs, if
put upon them without their consent.
Of course the improvement of a street
cannot be left to the individual wishes
of the owners of property adjacent al-
together—that is to say, a street cannot be
paved piecemeal, left unpaved according as A, B, or C, may elect. But if
a majority of the owners along a certain stretch of street scheduled for re-
pair or for original paving protest
against the work, their unwillingness to
stand the cost, which the new system
would impose upon them should operate
as a deterrent, in all equity.If high prices are due, as some
economists have declared, to the fact
that gold has become abundant, and
therefore less in value as an exchange
for products, a scarcity of gold ought
to create an immediate decline in the
cost of food materials.Europe has no idea of using the mediation talent this hemisphere has developed in connection with the present
crisis.The employment of lead to settle a
political crisis requires an enormous
amount of gold.

Chairman McCombs.

When Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee declined the French mission gossip carried two explanations: One was that he was
"united," and would have nothing to do
with the administration. The other was
that his success in politics had given him
a strong liking for the game, and that
he preferred active political life at home
to the leisure of a diplomatic post
abroad, even in so attractive a city as Paris. The latter explanation seems to
fit the case.Mr. McCombs must be fond of politics.
He keeps his hold on the national committee, and is in touch with what is going on in political circles.Just now he is busy trying to bring
order out of chaos in New York. He
wants a democratic governor, a democratic United States senator and as many
democratic representatives as possible,
elected in November. His choice for governor is thought to be Gov. Glynn, and
his own name has been connected with
the race for senator.Copying the republicans, the democrats are preparing a platform in advance of their state convention, and Mr.
McCombs is the chairman of the com-mitted which has the business in hand.
Those who will assist him are William
Church, George B. Blount, George
Burd, William Temple Emmet, D. Cady
Herrick, Martin W. Littleton and Fay C.
Parsons. Besides, all other democratic
leaders in the state are invited to make
suggestions as to what the platform
should contain.But Mr. McCombs is not confining his attention to New York. His official eye
is glancing from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and back again. He is getting a
line on the situation throughout the
country respecting the next House, with
a view, of course, of assisting democratic
candidates in their campaigns.If there was at one time a coolness between Chairman McCombs and the President it has disappeared. They meet for
conference at the White House apparently on the best of terms; the choice
which testifies to the stronger there for the fact that his name has not been associated at any time with controversies
growing out of patronage. There has been no "McCombs slate" mentioned in
any quarter when the hunt for office has been on.Paris is bright and gay, and the life
of an ambassador there is full of movement and pleasure. But in deciding to
remain at home and bear a hand in the
rough-and-tumble of our political activities, Mr. McCombs made the choice
which testifies to the American spirit of
wanting to be near when big things are
stirring and to help to give them shape
and consequence. The President is fortunate in the friendship and assistance of
so capable a man, whose position gives
weight to his words and deeds.

The Closed Exchanges.

The closing of the stock exchanges yesterday came as a total surprise, although
when it occurred the reasonableness of
the action was apparent. Undoubtedly
this procedure saved many persons from
loss. Great smash there will cause
at least great trembling here.We should keep ourselves prepared
as well as possible for all emergencies.
With only the domestic situation in
hand, it has been the opinion of many
that the country might benefit by a
cessation of the activities of Congress
until winter.But, upon the instant, a new situation
confronts us, and Congress is a most
important factor in the equation. In
circumstances legislation when
necessary is very necessary, and with
Congress in session the country will
feel a greater security.Early adjournment has been urged
not alone upon business grounds but
upon political grounds. Senators and
representatives standing for re-election
have been anxious about their campaigns, and eager to go home and take
charge in person.But in the new circumstances the
higher duty may be here. And such
being the case, we expect men
of both parties to rise to it.How much this year's campaigns may
be affected by the sudden change in
matters is a question. Election day
cannot be postponed. Even if the
whole of Europe is rocking with
armed conflict, voters in this coun-
try will go to the polls in November
and choose a new House and a third
of the Senate.Today the issue between the two
parties is the record of the administration. The republicans challenge the
new tariff law, some features of the
new currency law, the forcing of trust
legislation at this time, and the President's course toward Mexico, Colombia and Nicaragua. And that challenge will stand regardless of what
may occur between now and November.But the vigor of the campaign, the
efforts of the managers of both parties
to stir the electorate under the new
conditions as they would have had
little trouble in doing under the old,
will depend. We are approaching a
situation that puzzles as well by its
novelty as by its magnitude.

Property Owners and Street Paving.

Decision having been rendered by the
corporation counsel that the so-called
Borah amendment to the District ap-
propriation bill, putting part of the cost
of street paving upon the owners of
abutting property, applies to work undertaken this year, the Commissioners
are to proceed under the basis of the
improvement of the streets by original paving and resurfacing. The question
arises whether the owners of the property abutting the streets chosen for
paving or repairs are to have any de-
termining voice in the matter. It would seem only just to give them the chance
to vote any proposition for the expenditure of money which must come in large
part from their pockets. In many cases
the assessment of paving costs upon the
owners of property will prove an un-
bearable burden upon them. It is con-
ceivable that some owners of property
may be overwhelmed by these costs, if
put upon them without their consent.
Of course the improvement of a street
cannot be left to the individual wishes
of the owners of property adjacent al-
together—that is to say, a street cannot be
paved piecemeal, left unpaved according as A, B, or C, may elect. But if
a majority of the owners along a certain stretch of street scheduled for re-
pair or for original paving protest
against the work, their unwillingness to
stand the cost, which the new system
would impose upon them should operate
as a deterrent, in all equity.If high prices are due, as some
economists have declared, to the fact
that gold has become abundant, and
therefore less in value as an exchange
for products, a scarcity of gold ought
to create an immediate decline in the
cost of food materials.Europe has no idea of using the mediation talent this hemisphere has developed in connection with the present
crisis.The employment of lead to settle a
political crisis requires an enormous
amount of gold.

Chairman McCombs.

When Chairman McCombs of the democratic national committee declined the French mission gossip carried two explanations: One was that he was
"united," and would have nothing to do
with the administration. The other was
that his success in politics had given him
a strong liking for the game, and that
he preferred active political life at home
to the leisure of a diplomatic post
abroad, even in so attractive a city as
Paris. The latter explanation seems to
fit the case.Mr. McCombs must be fond of politics.
He keeps his hold on the national committee, and is in touch with what is going on in political circles.Just now he is busy trying to bring
order out of chaos in New York. He
wants a democratic governor, a democratic United States senator and as many
democratic representatives as possible,
elected in November. His choice for governor is thought to be Gov. Glynn, and
his own name has been connected with
the race for senator.Copying the republicans, the democrats are preparing a platform in advance of their state convention, and Mr.
McCombs is the chairman of the com-

Woodward & Lothrop

New York—WASHINGTON—Paris.

Advance Showing and August Sale of HIGH-GRADE FURS and FUR GARMENTSAt Prices the Lowest of the Entire Year Begins Monday Morning, August Third

This is your invitation to come and see the New Furs for the coming season which we have assembled in this early showing and sale. It is, by far, the very largest assortment that we have ever brought together for a like occasion. It is the greatest in variety of Furs presented, the superb beauty and markings of the pelts, the exquisite styles into which they have been fashioned, and the thorough expert manner in which skilled furriers have shown their handiwork.

It is a veritable exposition of all that shall be absolutely correct in fur fashions, and we guarantee that every garment and every piece is true to style, true to name, and that many of the garments or separate pieces will not be obtainable again at these low prices.We emphasize this fact: These low prices will prevail for the month of August only. September 1st the regular season's prices will be placed upon every piece.Every woman who is willing to make her selections in this seemingly illogical time—will surely receive the benefit of genuine reductions, and will choose from assortments than can be no better, no matter where offered.

GENUINE SEAL COATS.

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$185.00	$250.00
$195.00	$275.00
$210.00	$300.00

HUDSON SEAL COATS.

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$85.00	$115.00
$95.00	$135.00
$120.00	$175.00
$125.00	$200.00

NEAR SEAL COATS.

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$60.00	$85.00
$62.50	$85.00
$65.00	$85.00
$65.00	$90.00
$67.50	$90.00
$75.00	$100.00

GENUINE PERSIAN LAMB

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$100.00	$150.00
$165.00	$225.00
$200.00	$300.00
$250.00	$350.00

BLACK CARACUL COATS.

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$50.00	$75.00
$60.00	$80.00
$65.00	$90.00
$75.00	$100.00
$85.00	$115.00
$87.50	$110.00
$100.00	$125.00
$100.00	$150.00

NATURAL MARMOT COATS.

August Sale	Regular Season
Prices.	Prices.
$37.50	$55.00
$45.00	$65.00
$60.00	$80.00
$80.00	$120.00

MUFFS AND SCARFS IN SETS AND SEPARATE PIECES.

Muffs, in many shapes, several of them absolutely new this season, and various sizes, though the huge muffs of former years not so much in evidence. Decidedly smart and distinctive are the Melon-shaped Muffs and the Muffs with windshield at ends; new also are the perfectly flat Muffs. Other styles embrace Pillow Muffs, Round Muffs, Flat Muffs and Trimmed Muffs.Scarfs are in the correct styles and furs for the coming season. Nothing newer or more fashionable can be shown. In fact, it will be difficult to duplicate some of the pieces later, because many of them are exclusive reproductions of foreign models.